[BY TELEGRAPH TO THE OREGONIAN.]

The Suspension of Jay Cooke & Co.—Its Influence on the Exchange.

NEW YORK, Sept 18.—The day in financial circles has been one of unusual excitement growing out of the suspension of Jay Cooke & Co. Failures which have heretofore occurred were mere local affairs and produced little excitement compared with the one of to-day. The connection of Jay Cooke & Co., with the Government in effecting loans during the war and in funding operations since has given the firm a national reputation, which, of course, only intensified the excitement consequent upon their suspension. The money market was unfavorably affected by the failures of to-day and a general distrust was enforced thereby. The Express says the Government to-day in refusing to sell gold took the first step toward stopping a spread of the panic and calls upon Secretary Richardson to let loose a portion of the currency balances. The Government's are weak and unsettled in tone. At the close State bonds were quiet. The effect of the suspension was decided on the Stock Exchange where a heavy decline in values took place, with a feverish [illegible] Market. During the afternoon there was [illegible] of failures but at the close of business the only [illegible] ones were Robinson & Strydam and Richard Schell.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 18.—There are no new developments to-night in financial troubles. Mr. Cooke will not be able to [illegible] a statement of his affairs for a day or two. While [illegible] is excitement among the business community over his [illegible]ension, great sympathy is expressed for Cooke, and hopes are [illegible] that he will eventually weather the storm.

The temporary suspension of E. W. Cooke & Co. was on account of the advances on securities not now available. The firm state that their house will resume business at an early day.

[illegible] the N. P. R. R. Affected by the Suspension.

As in connection with the suspension of Jay Cooke & Co. many holders of Northern Pacific R[illegible]d bonds throughout the country will [illegible]ly feel concerned about their investments, inquiry has been made and the fact is [illegible]ed, first, the Northern Pacific is largely in debt to its financial agents, and therefore can lose nothing pecuniarily by their suspension. The Northern Pacific company will have to make other financial arrangements before pushing forward its line. It has had the completed road and land grant both mortgaged to secure its bonds and this security is [illegible]ample sufficient.

[illegible] Liability of Jay Cooke & Co. not Affected.

There is no truth whatever in the rumor that the National Life Insurance Company is in any way affected by the suspension of Jay Cooke

[illegible] of Fisk & Hatch and Other Firms Said to be Up to Par.

NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—Fisk & Hatch have failed, while Freis & Rubelon are announced as having suspended. The firms of Beeters & Edwards and Eugene Jackson also have been announced, in the Stock Exchange, as failed. There have been failures, since the above announcement, of Thomas Reen & Co., W. H. Warren & Co., Greenleaf & Norris and George Pelley. This seems to be another Black Friday, and a dreary, rainy day contributes to the [illegible] gloom. Gold has reached 114, and [illegible] in some instances, have fallen 10 per [illegible]. Day & Morse and Hoyt & Warner have [illegible]. Theodore Bedell and A. M. Kidder are the latest announced failures.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 19.—Desso & Bro. have failed.

NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—A sharp reaction is reported, under announcements that Vanderbilt's brokers are buying heavily.

[illegible] of the Harvest Excursion.

Contributions for the relief and support of the [illegible]-report sufferers received to-day by the Western Union Telegraph Co., amounted to $7,000.

[illegible] Shipments.

NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—In Oyer and Terminer Court to-day John McManus pleaded guilty to manslaughter in the first degree, in killing Michael K. Irwin, and was sent to State Prison for life.

Our Army Movements.

NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—John Mann and John Keating, rival bakers in Greenville, N. J., met to-day. The former shot the latter and then shot himself.

Will Pay All Depositors.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 18.—Mr. Cooke says: "I [illegible] this house will speedily be relieved from its embarrassment, and to this end every dollar of means [illegible]ed by members of the firm will be applied. No one who has a dollar on deposit here will lose it. Every liability will be faithfully discharged."

The Firm in London.

LONDON, Sept. 18.—The London firm of Mr. Cooke responds by stating that all drafts and letters of credit on them issued by Jay Cooke & Co. will be duly honored.

Proceedings of the Grand Lodge I. O. O. F.

BALTIMORE, Sept. 18.—In the Grand Lodge I. O. O. F. this morning, the announcement of the death of Past Sire John A. Kennedy was made. Several members delivered eulogies upon the deceased.

A resolution that the next annual session of the Grand Lodge be held in Atlanta, Ga., was unanimously adopted.

The Finance Committee, to whom was referred a communication from the jurisdiction of Saxony, praying for aid from the Grand Lodge in the construction of an Odd Fellow's Hall in the city of Dresden, and also an application of Helvita Lodge No. 1, at Zurich, Switzerland, for a loan to aid in the building of an Odd Fellow's Hall in that city, reported adversely.

Myers' Narrative of the Mutiny on the "Polaris."

NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—Sergeant Myers supplements the announcement of the [illegible] of the remaining members of the Polaris expedition by the following statement made to a Washington correspondent: "Of what has been heard about almost a mutiny created by Dr. Bessels, I can only say that I was the innocent cause. Before we arrived at Disco, Captain Hall enjoined us to drop all matters in reference to my position as meteorologist, astronomer and general member of the scientific party and attend solely to the astronomical part of the Polaris' navigation, especially to keeping Capt. Hall's journal. Dr. Bessels, on his part, claimed my services and enjoined me to do the principal scientific work. Capt. Hall and Dr. Bessels, without my knowledge, consulted about the matter not in the most friendly manner, and the consequence was that Dr. Bessels informed Capt. Hall that he could be returned to the United States if he [Capt. Hall] would send me back there, as he had hinted. The Chief Engineer hearing of this, declared that he, too, would leave if Dr Bessels returned, and the crew generally were so disposed. As soon as I heard of the intended breaking up of the expedition, I went to the Captain and told him I would not oppose his command, but was ready to fulfill his duties rather than be the cause of [illegible]sion. He at once agreed, and said I only would keep his journal. I might attend to as much scientific matter as would offer itself to me. So ended what has been construed as a mutiny. Capt. Hall did not refer to the matter in the presence of the crew until the vessel was beyond civilization."

Burned to Death.

CINCINNATI, Sept. 19.—The dwelling of Wm. Cronick, near Williamstown, Ky., was burned last night. Cronick's wife and two children, and an orphan boy named Duncan, perished in the flames.

WASHINGTON CITY.

The Suspension in Washington.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18.—Secretary Richardson and Comptroller Knox were in consultation this afternoon in reference to the suspension here, and a Receiver will probably be appointed to take charge of the First National Bank. The Secretary of the Treasury states that the Government does not lose by the suspension, deposits of Government officers in the First National Bank being fully secured by deposit of that institution in the National Treasury, and that the Syndicate operation balances is in favor of the Government, they having overpaid it the last settlement. Late this afternoon there was something of a run on the Washington City Saving's Bank, but all demands, so far, have been promptly met.

LONDON, Sept. 19.—Miss Rye sailed for Montreal yesterday, having in charge 55 working women, for whom she has secured employment in America.

A Thousand Dollars Fine of a Judicial Order.

LONDON, Sept. 19.—The Tichborne claimant has published an appeal in which he states that the prohibition by the court of further appeals from him, or the solicitation of aid of the public has cut off his supply of funds.

The riotous demonstrations at Fraleo have ceased, and the military force have been withdrawn.

Mr. Scudamore, Director of the postal telegraph service, denies the truth of the rumor that the Government is about to purchase the Atlantic cable lines.

CALIFORNIA.

From San Francisco.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 19.—The examination of George Petrorious, Lawrence Givens and Henry Rankin, for an assault upon Miss Janie Campbell, is proceeding in the Police Court. Her statement of the alleged outrage does not differ from that already sent, but on cross examination by defendant's attorney she testifies that she was engaged to marry John Williams, a coal miner in Nortonville; that her mother resides in Somerville, town adjoining; that Williams seduced her, and she was sent by her mother to this city and St. Mary's Hospital. From there she was sent to the County Hospital, where her child was born, which subsequently died at Mount St. Joseph's, Potrero. The defense will be that the girl is of ill-repute. This little circumstance has been taken advantage of against her.

The steamer Senator has gone to the wreck of the Costa Rica for the purpose of shipping her upper works, and getting more of her cargo if possible.

No quotations of Liverpool wheat have been received to-day.

Nothing new from the wreck of the Costa Rica:

SAN FRANCISCO, Sep. 19.—All four compartments of the Costa Rica are filled with water to a depth of 15 feet each, and there is little hope of getting the wreck off. A portion of the cargo was insured for $20,000 in the California Insurance Company, $10,000 in the Merchants' Marine, and smaller amounts in other companies.

The failure of Jay Cooke & Co. causes some uneasiness here, but it is believed that none of our banking or mercantile firms will be affected by the failure.

Capital stock of the California Jute Manufacturing Company to the amount of seven hundred thousand dollars, is already subscribed.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 19.—The Coroner's inquest in the case of Catherine Enni was concluded this evening. The testimony tended to show that her son, Antone, frequently abused and beat her, and that they quarreled the night preceding the day the dead body was discovered; further, that he said he would finish her that night. The Coroner's jury found him guilty of manslaughter. He will probably be tried for that offense.

The examination of Petrorious, Givens and Rankin for assault on Janie Campbell with intent to commit rape, is not yet concluded, and will be resumed to-morrow.

No important arrests by the police to-day.

The friends of McCrea, the missing man from San Rafael, fail to find any clue to his whereabouts. They fear he has been murdered for money.

Interesting and entertaining public exercises were given by all the schools this afternoon. Vacation next week.

Since June last, Assistant Treasurer Sherman has sent East $5,750,000, and received from Washington $4,000,000 currency.

The British ship Cairnsmore, which arrived to-day from Hongkong, reports that on August 8th, when in latitude 2° 0' N., longitude 120° east, a typhoon was seen coming down toward the ship. The barometer falling to 29° 10', with a heavy sea from the northeast. The sea increased to a fearful extent, breaking clear over the ship and the wind blowing heavily from the westward. The ship proceeded on the 9th, but found the sea so heavy as to be obliged again to lay too until the following day, when she continued on her course with pleasant weather.

Schooner San Diego left to-day on a wrecking expedition down the coasts of California and Mexico. She takes a full complement of divers and diving apparatus. She expects to return about three months hence.

Interior California.

EUREKA, Sept. 19.—Surveyor Edwards, who was arrested on a charge of assault to commit murder upon Michael Murphy, was examined yesterday and discharged. Murphy is reported out of danger.

VALLEJO, Sept. 19.—Last evening, A. H. Tandy and John Hogan, while driving in a buggy near the Mountain House, were fired at by a party secreted by the roadside. The horses were frightened and ran, the parties making their escape.

SACRAMENTO, Sept. 19.—Fully six thousand persons were present again to-day on the Fair ground. The track is in excellent order. In the trotting race for a purse of $2,000, two mile heats, Jerome, 1-1, Dexter, 2-2; Mary Davis, 4-3; Jupiter, 3-4; Oregon Jake drawn. Time—5:2, 5:11. There was a splendid trotting race between Jerome and Dexter for a purse of $750, mile heats, 3 in 5.

STOCKTON, Sept. 19.—William Davis, charged with having caused the death of Judge Brush, received a preliminary examination to-day. Several witnesses for the prosecution were examined. The testimony elicited shows that the defendant was under the influence of liquor at the time of the accident. Case continued until to-morrow.

Wheat quiet at about yesterday's prices $2 20@2 25—with very little offering.

ARIZONA.

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 19.—From the Arizona Miner: In Prescott and vicinity this year, the amount of rainfall has been greater comparatively than during the preceding four years.

Sunday evening J. H. Townsend came in to Fort Whipple and informed Gen. Crook that the Indians attacked two men, D. R. Poland and Ed. Powers, on Saturday last, while near Lone Pine. The Indians were armed with breech loading guns. At the time the attack was made Poland was tightening the girth of his saddle horse, and was killed. A number of shots were fired on both sides. Two men escaped to Townsend's ranch unhurt.

Lieut. Schuyler, with a detachment of soldiers, started from Fort Whipple Monday evening to scout after the Indians. Since the Indians went on Verde Reservation many have been sick. More than 100 have died from fever and whooping cough. Sickness and mortality rendered them uneasy, and many have been anxious to leave Verde and go back to Dale creek, their old home.

JUGGERNAUT'S JOURNEY.

THE GREAT FESTIVAL OF INDIA—ITS OBSERVANCE LAST MONTH.

To the Juggernaut car festival, which is now at its height, an unusual interest has been lent this year by the correspondence between the Government of India and Bengal, on the subject of preventing those cruel deaths, by accident which have been reported to you in several years. The Lieutenant-Governor reported to the Government of India, when asking for its advice and instruction, that, in his opinion, the time had come for stopping the dragging of such of the cars as were dangerous to life. "If we were still in a bigoted Hindoo country, such things might be permitted; but in Bengal the rulers are Christians; half the population are Mohammedans, half the remainder are aborigines, outcasts of Hindooism, Brahmins, and nothing in particular. There is but a limited Hindoo population, who have very little enthusiasm for this kind of thing, and the heavy cars are with great difficulty moved by people, many of whom are, it appears, ryots on the temple estate, and others driven unwillingly to the work, or others who take it up for reasons not religious, some for fun, some for profit." But he would tolerate all others not dangerous to life. In a subsequent letter he amplified this by a no means exaggerated picture of the state of Hindooism in the centres of intelligence, by giving the substance of opinions collected from native gentlemen, like the Maharajah of Burdwan, who would stop dangerously large ones. Although Sir George Campbell wrote, the car festival had its origin in a religious idea, and though it can still raise feelings of enthusiasm in the breasts of elderly women or other such persons, it has undoubtedly degenerated into a fair, or mere gathering for amusement. The correspondence has ended in the Government of India agreeing with that of Bengal that the nuisance section of the criminal procedure code provides for the evil, and that a discretionary power may be left to the responsible magistrate of stopping any car which he deems to be unsafe, in which act he will be supported by the Government.

The festival at Serampore was this year a striking commentary on the above description. Fourteen miles above Calcutta on the right bank of the Hooghly, a pious Hindoo has been erected, by his last will, a fine ghaut for the pilgrims to the Serampore Juggernaut. On Wednesday last, the day before the festival, a few boats only were seen at the spot where, in former years thousands used to throng. When I landed, the females were sounding the evening prayer on discordant gongs; nude ascetics fresh from the hill of ashes were wandering about among timid women in charge of some timid priest. Beggars dressed up with extra hands and heads, and colored to represent the deities of Hindooism, were silently presenting their plates for offerings. Soon the sparse crowd cooked their evening meal and ate their parched rice, and lay down on the ground to sleep away the hours till Juggernaut appeared in his car. Next day, for the thousands of former years there were literally tens. Even Sir George Campbell's elderly females found it more interesting—in the case of a group of simple women from a distance at least—to study the dress of a party of English ladies who had come to see the sights, and to listen to the words of one of them at the very time that the shapeless block of wood was being hoisted up to its places on the top of the car. More than one native Christian preacher, too, had a good audience. All the booths, shops, and shows of the "Jottra" were there as usual, but almost in vain. The pice, or farthings, which each devotee offered to the priest on the car for a consecrated garland of white flowers, were few. After the orders of government, the English magistrate was on his mettle, believing that he could so supervise the dragging of the car this year as to prevent fatal accidents. Policemen, native and English, were everywhere. But, up to 2 o'clock in the afternoon, the hour which he fixed at the latest, the priests failed to get men enough to draw the unwieldly erection on its twenty-four vast disks of wood, although their own tenants were there. The second and rival car further on had then its turn, but the ropes broke at the first pull, and there it stands to this hour a melancholy spectacle. Toward sunset the first car was dragged the usual distance, the temple having succeeded in inducing a sufficient number of hands to draw. But there was little of that indescribable roar when the idol was lifted to its place—a cry, half sonorous, half bleating—which in former years I have heard two miles away. Never has the festival been such a failure, though it has annually been falling off. The priests ascribe it to the interference of the police, who prevent accidents that give eclat to the occasion. Some evidently orthodox Hindoos whom I asked, declared that the heat was too great to allow people to come a distance, and that the epidemic fever had weakened many. But all, priests, and orthodox, sorrowfully allow that the car festival is not what it was once.—Calcutta Cor. of the London Times.

The Canadian Parliament, some time ago, issued a law on the same subject.

NEW YORK, Sept. 15.—Demas Barnes to-day issued a new Brooklyn paper—an afternoon two cent journal called the Daily Argus. The first number contains an interview at Quebec with Joseph Arch, Champion of the farm laborers of England, who arrived in Canada last week on his way to the United States. In reply to a question, he said "I am here to learn the truth about the emigration question. My duty is to the toilers of England. I did not come in the interest of any speculative emigration scheme, and I did not come to pander to the crotchets of demagogues. You have broad lands in America. English farm laborers will make desirable citizens. Help them to get here. Give the immigrant land, and ask of him payment in easy installments. You may have to lend a little governmental aid until the first crop is harvested, but after that he is independent and ready to pay the money you have advanced."

BENT.

"Love is better than horse or lands,
So Sir Stephen I'll ride with thee!
Quick she steps where the courser stands
Light she springs to the saddle tree

Love is better than Kithor Kin,
So close she clung and so close clasped he,
They heard no sob of the bitter wind
Nor the snow that shudder'd along the lea

Love is better than life or breath!
The drifts are over the horse's knee
Softly they sink to the soft, cold death,
And the snow shroud folds them silently

Horses and hands are gone for awe,
Kith and kin like the wild wind flee,
Life and breath have fluttered away,
But love hath blossomed eternally.

RAILROAD ITEMS.

TACOMA, W. T., Sept. 15, 1873.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

Thinking that an item of railroad news from this vicinity might be of interest to some of your numerous readers, I transmit to you for publication what I have seen and learned.

Mr J. B Montgomery's contract from Tenino to Tacoma, a distance of thirty-nine miles, will be completed by the 30th of this month. Owing to a change being made on the line after work was resumed, it was necessary to place the amount of grading to fifty miles in length, in consequence of diverging from the original line in order to reach Tacoma, the final location of the terminus. The fifty miles will be finished in about five months from the commencement on the contract, grading at the rate of ten miles per month. Mr. Montgomery's reputation is too well known to the public, both here and in the East, to doubt his capacity as a successful contractor. This is his third contract on the Northern Pacific Railroad since the commencement, some three years ago, all of which he has successfully completed or nearly so.

The large force employed by Mr. Montgomery are superintended by Mr. Connolly, formerly superintendent for J. L. Hallett on the Oregon and California Railroad, and also on Mr. Hallett's thirty-mile contract on the Northern Pacific last year. Mr. Connolly has skillfully managed the force under his supervision, notwithstanding the character of grading and the classification of material were not favorable for the contractor. But through the never tiring energy displayed by the superintendent and the forces at his command, the work is undoubtedly degenerated into a fair, or mere gathering for amusement. The correspondence has ended in the Government of India agreeing with that of Bengal that the nuisance section of the criminal procedure code provides for the evil, and that a discretionary power may be left to the responsible magistrate of stopping any car which he deems to be unsafe, in which act he will be supported by the Government.

I did not come in the interest of any speculative emigration scheme, and I did not come to pander to the crotchets of demagogues. You have broad lands in America. English farm laborers will make desirable citizens. Help them to get here. Give the immigrant land, and ask of him payment in easy installments. You may have to lend a little governmental aid until the first crop is harvested, but after that he is independent and ready to pay the money you have advanced."

"Love is better than horse or lands,
So Sir Stephen I'll ride with thee!
Quick she steps where the courser stands
Light she springs to the saddle tree

Love is better than Kithor Kin,
So close she clung and so close clasped he,
They heard no sob of the bitter wind
Nor the snow that shudder'd along the lea

Love is better than life or breath!
The drifts are over the horse's knee
Softly they sink to the soft, cold death,
And the snow shroud folds them silently

Horses and hands are gone for awe,
Kith and kin like the wild wind flee,
Life and breath have fluttered away,
But love hath blossomed eternally.

OREGON.

The time for holding the Jacksonville camp-meeting will be October 2d instead of September 25th.

A term of the Circuit Court for Clackamas county will be held in Oregon City commencing next Monday.

Oregon City has presented a lively appearance for the last week, occasioned by the farmers hauling wheat into market.

The Enterprise says: "A case of smallpox exists in the family of Mr. Chase, who lives at Howard's Mill, on the Clackamas about eight miles distant from Oregon City.

Hon. John Henry Smith delivers the opening address, and Hon. A. J. Dufur the agricultural address at the Linn County Fair next week.

Will Westlake's horse last Monday ran away with him and the buggy at Albany, and the linch-pin holes were about the the only articles saved from the general wreck.

There will be a protracted meeting held in the C. P. Church in Lebanon, Linn county, Oregon, beginning on Saturday, October 11th, and holding over two Sabbaths.

Last Monday C. D. Burkhart delivered a wagon load of wheat at Comstock's warehouse at Albany which weighed 9,725 pounds—nearly five tons. We have heard of nothing like this.

The Eugene Hawkeye says: "Wheat on wheels. Long trains of wagons come into town daily loaded with wheat, drive to the depot, get their money, and go home in the best of humor."

A farmer on Mohawk lost 200 bushels of wheat this week by the destroying element. It appears that some boys were burning stubble, and through carelessness the grain was burned.

The Oregon Presbytery of the Cumberland Presbyterian Church stands adjourned to convene in the C. P. Church, Salem, Oregon, on Thursday, the 23d of October next, at 7:30 o'clock P. M.

The steamboat Success left Oregon City Wednesday morning and arrived at Salem wharf Thursday morning with about forty tons of freight. She scraped the bottom of the Willamette several times on her passage up.

John Minto informs the Statesman that a good wagon route across the Cascade ranges of mountains has been discovered. The route lays along the north fork of the Santiam and crosses the mountains in the vicinity of Mount Jefferson.

The railroad company give notice that on and after September 17, 1873, no merchandise arriving at the Albany depot from the north will be delivered on the day of its arrival, but will be ready for delivery on the following morning.

Mr. P. C. Dargan, Deputy Sheriff of Coos county, brought to the penitentiary last Wednesday, a man named A. Higson, charged with attempt to commit rape on the person of a little girl of four years of age. He was sentenced to a term of five years.

The Albany Democrat says: "The lowest estimate of the wheat yield of Linn county for the current year is one million bushels—or one-fourth of the crop of the State! If it is all sold at $1 per bushel we won't have any money in the country this winter, nor nothin'? Guess not!"

The different educational institutions of Salem are all under way, with a very fair attendance of pupils. Besides the district schools, the Deaf Mute school and the school for the blind, the Academy of the Sacred Heart, and the Wallamet University are all in a most flourishing condition.

At a called meeting of the Board of Delegates of the Fire Department of Oregon City, held on the 5th inst., J. M. Frazer, Esq., in the Chair, Ben Holladay, Esq., through Hon. J. D. Biles, agent of the Oregon Steamship Company, presented to the Oregon City Fire Department two splendid and costly gold-mounted silver trumpets as a token on behalf of his high appreciation of the gallant and meritorious conduct of the Oregon City Fire Department on the night of the almost total destruction by fire of the Alice and Shoo Fly, belonging to the aforesaid company. Hon. Hiram Cochran made the presentation speech in a few happy remarks. Col. W. L. White, Chief Engineer of the Fire Department responded on behalf of the Department in a very appropriate and and able manner.

THE TERRITORIES.

Rev. J. M. Jamison, presiding elder of Idaho District, Rocky Mountain Conference, is now on a visit to Lewiston and other places in Northern Idaho.

Hon. Elwood Evans, U. S. Centennial Commissioner, will take the initiatory steps at the forthcoming Industrial Fair at Seattle toward securing subscriptions for the Centennial stock in Washington Territory. The small sum of $6,000 has been allotted to the Territory.

The best paper published in Utah is the daily Tribune, which reaches our table every day from the "City of Saints." It came out recently in an enlarged form and finer make-up. Its contents are always pointed and newsy. Liberally tolerant, the Tribune editor takes no polygamy in his.

The Courier says: "U. S. Deputy Surveyor Jamieson has left at the Bank in Olympia some specimens of coal from a coal ledge recently discovered in the Skookum Chuck country. Some of it is hard and compact and is a very good article of bituminous coal. The lead, where it crops out, is about six feet thick."

STATE BOARD OF EQUALIZATION.

[From the Statesman of September 19th.]

Board of Equalization met yesterday pursuant to adjournment.

Present a full Board.

Minutes of the previous meeting read and approved.

In regard to the defects in the Jackson county assessment roll,

Resolved, That the assessment roll of that county does not exhibit the real aggregate of the property in said county, from the fact that following the names of parties in numerous instances no statement of property, real or personal, appears, other than the entry "property covered by debts."

It is consequently impossible to ascertain the true aggregate of the acreage of land, the value thereof, or the true amount of any other kind of property, or the sum total of indebtedness and exemption in said county.

Therefore the Board declares its disapproval of the manner in which the assessment of said county of Jackson in this particular has been made as shown by the transcript. Ordered that the Clerk be directed to transmit to the Board of Equalization of Jackson county, a copy of the proceedings in the case.

The greater part of the time of the Board was occupied in examination of assessment rolls, in hearing complaints and petitions, and in other business connected with its objects.

The Board adjourned.

GERMAN VICTORY MEMORIAL.

UNVEILING OF VICTORY COLUMN IN BERLIN—IMPOSING CEREMONIES.

The London Telegraph of the 3d instant has a long telegram describing the unveiling of the Victory Column in Berlin, on the anniversary of the victory and capture of Sedan. The correspondent says:

At eight o'clock the trumpeters of the Imperial Guard, stationed on the roof of the Royal Castle, sounded forth the chorale, "Honor alone to God on high," thus characteristically, and in keeping with Prussian devotional feeling, beginning the day with a kind of righteous act. Shortly afterward the entire garrison of Berlin was marshaled to Kenigsplay, with bands playing and colors displayed, to take up positions around the Victory Monument. The members of the royal family now began to arrive and the pavilion was soon filled.

Thunders of cheering from the Thiergarten, followed by hoarse commands of officers and clashing of muskets and sabres as the troops came to attention, signalled the approach of the Emperor, who [illegible] and rode up to the [illegible] and by a brilliant staff. He was received with the Prussian anthem, and a general note immediately heralded him rode the Crown Prince, whilst slightly to the rear of the [illegible] and then a Emperors, rode Prince Frederick Charles, Albrecht, and Karl.

During a full half hour's wait for the arrival of the royalties, Prince Bismarck had been sitting alone [illegible] the enclosure. When the Emperor arrived, however, the Chancellor riding forward received his sovereign's party, joining and took his place in the Emperor's immediate vicinity.

After saluting the royal ladies his Majesty rode to the pavilion and halted his charger a little to its right, immediately opposite the balcony. [illegible] his sword he gave a signal for the [illegible] to unsheath and the drums to beat to prayers. This done, the choir sang two verses of the hymn commencing "Praise and honor to the name of God," and after a brief prayer, rode Prince Frederick Charles, Albrecht, and Karl.

At the moment when the draperies fell, all the bands struck up the National anthem, the troops presented arms and gave three ringing cheers, while the artillery of the Guard fired a salute of one hundred and one guns, and all the church bells rang out a joyous peal. The cathedral choir then, accompanied by the bands of the Imperial Guard and the Grenadiers, sang the chorale "Now Thank the Lord." While the devotional words were being sung, the Emperor, the troops, and the immense multitude of spectators present, listened with bared heads. His Majesty next proceeded to minutely inspect the troops, the [illegible] regiment as he rode up to its front rank, with a hearty "Good morning," to which the men replied, with the well-trained [illegible], "Good morning, Your Majesty." In and out of the lines rode the heroic old monarch, who [

SATURDAY MORNING SEPT 20 1873

WILL THE PARTY LIKE THE CONVENTION BE FORCED?

Says the Portland Bulletin

The friends of Mr Mitchell are censured for bringing forward the resolution respecting him in the Republican Convention But it should be remembered that they were virtually forced to such action Desiring to sustain him, and wishing to see him serve through his term with credit to himself and usefulness to the State they saw a persistent attempt by personal malice, to pursue him with unsparing vin dictiv- in the pe ty to "h him down"

Alia' "Personal malice," is it? By what sort of ethics can it be shown that it is "personal malice" to denounce the crimes of seduction desertion embezzlement and bigamy? In a' l ed enlighten d st law and decency, we call it "personal malice" to hate such crimes do we? We are personal enemies because we raise our voice against the mantling and fe ring of such deeds, are we? Because we will not acknowledge it right that such a black personal record should be spread upon the banner under which we battle it is to pursue him, to unsparing vindictiveness,' in the hope to 'break him down,' eh? "Break him down"? How high up is he? Put Senator Mitchell below the popular vote of Oregon, today for any office, and how many votes would he get? A corporal's guard? No more Then that is his true position before the people But by the meanest of trickery at the hands of his obsequious minions, and disgusting effrontery on his own part, he forces his crimes upon the party which honored him, and though they protest loudly against it, he says it must be done, it is done, and great is the done thereof His will be done and in the doing of it his party is to well done—cooked nicely through and served with his cursed sauce "But it should be remembered that" his friends say it was virtually forced to sanction polygamy How forced? Why to get a character for Mr Mitchell, the voice of his party sustaining him in their Convention, testimonial to carry along with him when he goes to Washington, indicative of the fact that the Modocs are making in the path of enlightenment and good order This is what the rub comes in force Won't it be jolly! Our Senator may take his Memorial to Washington and plaster it high and low, far and wide upon the walls of the Capitol hall, but he will also carry a brand with him by, one of which the Republican party will stamp upon him in indelible characters, and one which all his horde of sneaking menials will fail to whitewash over from now until the day he starts to legislate (?)—Reporter

The Bulletin is right. No malice, or personal ill feeling, has inspired the criticisms that have poured upon Mr Mitchell's head since the opposition to the resolution tokenoining his character. These things have been done wholly to avert the disgrace the Senator's conduct has brought upon the people of Oregon, and to prevent the Republican party from being made directly a party to the worst of the Senator's immoralities For this, and for this alone, the Republicans have constantly protested and protested, and still do so. There is something due to organization all admit, and upon a question of policy the Republicans who opposed Mr Mitchell would consentfully submit; but there is no duty to party organization, that demands a sacrifice of moral principle. It is not a want of attachment to the Republican party that prompts the opposition to an endorsement of this resolution. The opposition of it comprised most of the old line Republicans who were with the party at its origin and have been in it ever since Nor is it the deep and fixed devotion to the party that inspires the Holladay ring to urge Republicans to accept the platform made for them, with this obnoxious plank in it. They are, almost to a man, office-holders, who grow rich and powerful through the patronage of Senator Mitchell, and can not incur his displeasure without peril of losing their positions. A few of them hold offices that will never make them rich. It is true, but they act under the influence of Federal patronage, nevertheless. The political record of many of them, proves that they are not actuated by any deep and abiding love for the Republican party. Look at Mr O B. Gibson, for instance. He was at Albany laboring with all his might for this resolution. Besides this he was a prominent and active man on a ticket opposed to the Republican ticket of Multnomah county, and for no other reason than he had received a nomination by the Republicans and failed to get it. He is now Collector of Internal Revenue, appointed by Mr Mitchell.

How about Geo E Cole? He is a life-long Democrat, and was the manager of the State campaign against the Republican party of Oregon in 1868. Nobody ever thought of calling him a Republican until lately, and if they had, they would probably have given offence to him But Mr. Mitchell secured his appointment as Postmaster at Portland, one of the most important and lucrative Federal offices in the State, and he was the most efficient manager in securing the passage of the resolution, with the exception of the Senator himself.

W B. Dana was at the Convention as a ring delegate and as the proxy of another delegate, (the latter of whom we are informed repudiates the bigamous resolution); and he worked hard in the kalsomining job He is a Custom House officer He was Democratic colporteur in 1868, employed in circulating campaign documents against the Republican candidate for Congress.

Scarcely less prominent than the Senator himself in lobbying the whitewashing resolution through the Convention, was Capt Mcdorem Crawford He has been an office-holder ever since the Republican party came into power, in 1861, with the exception of a short interval, and now holds a fat position He refused to support the Republican candidate for Congress in 1868

In this manner we might go through the entire list of the ring office-holders who manipulated the Convention, and show that all to with almost no exceptions, they have been of the sort of Republicans who do not accept the action of the party's Conventions in all cases, and support its nominees at all events Those of them who can pretend to any Republican record at all, are men who have been in the habit of bolting the nominations of the party for the most trivial causes, and when it could not be pretended there was any moral question involved

We do not refer to these things out of any personal feeling against the gentlemen named With most of them our personal relations are pleasant, and with no one of them have we had unpleasant relations whatever. But this is their political record, and their present situation, and it is simply nonsense to say that it is their strong attachment to the Republican party that prompts their action They have refused to support the nominees of the party heretofore and comparatively recently at that, and their right to do so was not questioned, and ought not to have been so long as they acted from a sense of duty Their political record was not damaged by their bolting, if one may judge by the rewards they have received When they denounce Republicans for refusing to surrender their consciences, and the morals of their sons and daughters, at the command of the Senator or his convention, they stultify themselves. They deny to others the right to do for great cause, and at a time when there is no pretense that the safety of the country is involved in the issue what they themselves did when it was claimed that the safety of the country depended upon the success of the Republican party It is "bolting" now, and is a heinous crime, it was merely exercising a conscientious duty then, and was to be rewarded with positions of trust and profit

Such is the state of affairs at this time The men who, a while ago, were bolters for small cause, denounce those who, with great cause, propose to withhold their votes now. To such absurd and foolish lengths have party politics gone Not more unreasonable and tyrannical was the inquisition that drove the Puritans and Huguenots from their homes into exile for their religious opinions, than the tyranny of party rule would be to-day if it only had the power to enforce its decrees against non-conforming members But the party lash has lost its power, and the name of "bolter" has no longer any sting for men who only refuse their support to the party nominee for good and sufficient reasons.

"A TICKET FOR MEN."

One of the staunchest and ablest Republican papers in the State is the Yamhill Reporter Its Republicanism is founded upon principle, not upon self-interest. Naturally, therefore, it re allow the resolution decl- by and all kindred crim- to be such a "consistent, upright" honorable" course of conduct as ought to ire the people with the highest confidence in the man who lives such a life The Reporter proposes that conscientious Republicans, who naturally wish to avoid ing their votes for a Democrat, but cannot at to the polygamist, vote for Rev. E R. Geary, not as the party nominee, but as a gentleman for whom they can vote with an approving conscience, and with the assurance that if he should not be elected, they, at least, will have done their duty, and not submitted to the choice between rotten apples, which is presented them in the candidacy of Hi Smith on the bigamy platform, and Nesmith on the Democratic, both being understood to be of the Holladay ring. The Reporter displays the name of Rev. E R. Geary at the head of its columns as "A Ticket for Men," and follows it with an editorial announcement as follows.

OUR CANDIDATE.

Republicans of Yamhill and of the State of Oregon, we place this declaration beneath the above name that we will never make a record of having joined in so wicked a conspiracy as the one now on foot in this State to barter away the principles of the grandest political faith beneath the sun We cannot practice such deceit We hope never to be so abandoned of truth, honesty and respect for the liberties of our fellow men as to be able to do so. We should belie your sentiments and forfeit your confidence should we advocate the suicidal policy which has lately been brought before you. All do who pursue such a course The man whose name appears above was the only choice of the Convention. He would not surrender his tenets of honor, and such a man we want Instead of staying away from the polls, as many threaten to do, come on the 13th of October next and vote for Rev. E. R. Geary. You may not elect him, but you can show that you are men, and that you are not to be led into disgrace by a few, unscrupulous truant, who may for the time being claim your society because he thinks he can profit on you. It will be an honorable defeat, and that will be some consolation

The canvass in Mississippi promises to be an unusually warm one The contest for the gubernatorial nomination ended in a triumph for General Adelbert Ames Senator Alcorn, Ames' opponent in the Republican Convention, did not yield his claims so easily as he might have done. Immediately after the adjournment of the Convention he addressed an immense assemblage, says a reporter. He arraigned Gen Ames as the most effective man in Congress against Southern whites, announced himself a candidate for Governor and exhorted the people of all parties and classes to unite in executing a perpetual bond of friendship between whites and blacks, and in the work of rescuing Mississippi from bondholders and political incapacity His address was received with very great favor. Another dissatisfied gentleman, Mr H. C Carter, who was beaten in Convention for Lieutenant Governor, declared that he had been promised the second place on the ticket, but had been betrayed. He announced [illegible] for the position out of which he had been swindled, and heartily endorsed Alcorn's exhortation

We read that Senator Carpenter has written a witty letter to Treasurer Spinner by way of comment on that official's back pay theory, which reference is made elsewhere In his reply General Spinner cites Mr Carpenter to the fact that three of the members of the Thirty Fourth Congress were elected to the office of Vice President, notwithstanding the fact that that Congress made a retroactive increase of salary, The Treasurer's letter might have been just as effective if he had left out the last paragraph, wherein he complains of the low salaries paid Federal officials, and utters the stale lament that none but rich men and rascals can hold office The assertion comes with strange effect from an official of the dignity of Treasurer Spinner

We acknowledge the receipt from E M Waite, Esq, Secretary of the State Agricultural Society, of complimentary tickets to the 13th Annual Fair of the society, which will commence on the 6th of October and close on the 11th The prospects are that the Fair will be a greater success this year than ever before the crops and prices of products being such as to encourage every branch of farm enterprise

Ann Eliza Webb Young, the enterprising Utah lady who wants to make a fortune out of her wrongdoing, has compromised all difficulties with her counsel, and now proposes to push her suit vigorously The little unpleasantness was only an April shower after all The bow of promise spans her heavens and under one end you know, is the pot of gold

The men eager for the order gave a cheer well and put their horses into a full gallop The ogalallas, not remembering the night of the day men coming toward them like mad upon was too much for the Indians They turned like sheep and scattered in every direction Mounted on their fleet ponies with every foot hundred yards start, they carried with which they were familiar they succeeded after a close chase of three miles by our cavalry in getting beyond pursuit

Only one cavalryman was wounded in the engagement Several Indians were slain The particulars of the killing of Dr Honsinger and Mr Bahran have already been published in the OREGONIAN The Indians who made this attack are supposed to be mainly Uncpapas one of the ten tribes of the Sioux nation The Santee Yankton, Upper and Lower Yanktonais, the Brule of the Missouri the Minneconjou, Sansnac and Blackfeet are mainly friendly but in each of these tribes except the Yankton, there are hostile remnants that gladly unite with the Uncpapas and Ogalallas

From Ogden comes the cheering intelligence that Boss Tweed renowned Sachem of New York and par excellence the most successful thief in the written history of the race, is on his way to San Francisco It may not be too much to presume that Boss Ives included to "go West" The pick up Union of Gotham contracts the remarkable stealing powers of this unique American It is a rather startling commentary on New York justice that this man, the biggest thief of the age is at liberty to travel the continent at his own sweet will, defraying the expenses of his pleasure trip with moneys stolen from the treasury of the County of New York

In an article on the falsehood cooked up by W. I Williams and H W Scott in regard to the misunderstanding between Judge Page and ourselves, we left the impression that the fellow Williams had no authority to make a copy of Judge Page's letter This is incorrect He was directed to copy for Judge Page's own use, but his furnishing it to the Bulletin for publication, was conduct only worthy of so contemptible a fellow as he is We make this correction in regard to the copying of the letter, simply because we would not willingly do injustice to the meanest creature on earth.

It is rumored that Mr Odell Surveyor-General, has entered into an agreement with Senator Mitchell, whereby he (Odell) is to defend the Senator's youthful indiscretions" and the Senator is to defend Odell's official 'indiscretions' Wise young man'

The complaint of several leading German papers in the East about the tax imposed on German papers going to European countries has resulted in the abolition of the tax by the Prussian government.

Is it not about time for the Bulletin to bring forward that "glass eye" argument? The editor of that journal is overlooking his strong point

THE HAY-SEED POLITICIAN

To the Editor of the Oregonian

In your issue of the 17th inst you state that "in Minnesota, Ignatius Donnelly, the Cursa-general who first conceived the idea of sleeping in hay-mows and wearing timothy seed in the hair for political effect, has captured the Grangers, and it is understood that they will support the Democratic ticket"

No man in Minnesota is more thoroughly "played out" than Ignatius Donnelly During his brief residence in that State he has been a member of every organization that would receive him, and on all sides of every question When the Grangers began to show some strength he thought he saw his opportunity, and at once assumed the role of "farmer" But his zeal in their behalf was of too recent a date to inspire much confidence in the minds of the Grangers, and it is doubtful whether he could have been nominated under any circumstances They knew him in spite of his "hay-seed"

But the nomination of that brilliant young lawyer the Hon C K Davis by the Republicans as their candidate for Governor, was a complete squelcher to old "farmer" Donnelly's aspirations, for Mr Davis had years before planted himself squarely on the platform of resistance to the unjust demands of corporations and is to-day the most popular man among the Grangers of any among either party in the State His election is not only a foregone conclusion but his majority will undoubtedly be the largest ever given any candidate in Minnesota

ANOTHER CALL FOR THE PROOF

To the Editor of the Oregonian

My attention has been called to an attack in the Bulletin which intimates that there has been official misconduct in the management of the District Attorney's office in this District I called upon Hon O Mears whom I understood to be one of the editors of the Bulletin for the authority on which said article was written I was informed by that gentleman that he could give me no information that he did not have with Mr Scott's department etc I then went to consult Mr Scott who informed me that he knew nothing at all of the article in question

I have reply to say that the insinuations at [illegible] contained in the article referred to are [illegible] false [illegible] charges be established by competent evidence or detect the author of them [illegible] schemes to [illegible]

[illegible] patches [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] account of [illegible] [illegible] well known actor Mr Edwin Thayer He destroyed himself with [illegible] at No [illegible] of Washington night [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] patch does not [illegible] [illegible] reason for the [illegible] [illegible] despondency and destitution induced by excessive drinking and dissipation to which Mr Thayer was [illegible] addicted no doubt played a conspicuous [illegible] in bringing about the [illegible] He became [illegible] Mr Thayer was born in Boston where he was reared and received a liberal education Both his parents died some years ago He had an older brother who was connected with a large English firm [illegible] [illegible] years and was a gentleman who stood high among the business circles of that city His brother died about three years ago and left several thousand dollars to Portland as his portion of the estate After leaving school [illegible] was connected for some time with the Boston [illegible] as a local writer He came [illegible] about the year 1863, soon after he [illegible] himself to the editorial staff of the [illegible] a dramatic reporter Possessing a keen literary [illegible] and having a taste for [illegible] Mr Thayer was induced to abandon the reportorial calling and adopt the stage In the dramatic profession he applied himself assiduously, and by force of his ambition, natural gifts and studious habits rapidly rose, [illegible] proficiency and soon stood high as an actor About the year 1860 he married a Miss Sallie Goodrich but their union proved an unhappy one and soon after resulted in a permanent separation For the last ten years Thayer has traveled extensively over the Pacific coast, playing in various theatrical companies No actor who ever visited Portland was better known or a greater favorite with the public His ill chosen matrimonial connection and the unhappy severance of the relations rendered Mr Thayer misanthropic and morose and led to dissolute habits which [illegible] until the untimely end of his career He was an actor of much ability and also a literary writer of acknowledged taste and merit During his residence in California, Mr Thayer was a frequent contributor to the Golden Era and his pen sketches attracted considerable attention in literary circles Mr. Thayer possessed many noble and generous traits of character which strangely contrast with a life checkered with sunshine and shadow and which had such a tragical close Hundreds of persons who have often been thrilled by his well modulated voice, and graceful acting, will long cherish the memory of poor Thayer He was aged about 35 years at the time of his death

DEATH OF MRS HOLLADAY —Authentic intelligence was received on Thursday of the death of Mrs. Holladay, consort of Ben Holladay Several days ago the telegraphic announcement was made, on the authority of the New York World that this lady had departed life Subsequently the report was contradicted and the statement made that Mrs Holladay was slowly convalescing But this time the mournful tidings comes too well authenticated, and too direct to longer admit of any doubts about the truth She died near New York on Wednesday evening the 17th inst. No particulars of her death are given However, from telegraphic reports published in the New York papers, her death was directly attributable to grief and complete [illegible] caused by the sudden death of her beloved daughter the Countess de Pourtales Gouglas, who died several months ago at Chicago, while en route from the Pacific coast to visit her mother at the paternal home. Mrs. Holladay is now in San Francisco The weight of this last stroke will fall with peculiar affliction on the husband and father as he has buried three members of his family within two years In respect to the memory of the departed lady the flags on the Oregon Steamship Company's boats were displayed yesterday at half mast

SAILED —The steamer John L. Stephens sailed [illegible] at 2 o clock P M, for San Francisco, with a large freight The following passengers took their departure J T Cochran, F. W Paine, W Cochran, Mrs J M Hutchings, Samuel Boddish, Geo J Ainsworth Edward Hardy, R Briggs L Kuhn, A B Clarkson, Thompson Dray and family Miss Thorndyke, A. E. Wait, A Bernard L Funsion and family, John Kenyon and wife W F Robbins, Thos. Fairfowl, John S Purdie C Bevington, Walter Huston, R J Thompson, Bishop S. D Boggess, W Burnham, F L Chadwick and wife, W R Frisbie Miss Wallace, B Frauenthal, Fred Holman, B H Burmaster, Samuel Brogden Chin Poy A H King, Miss Annie Fisher, Mr Earle, J Heywood, Mrs. [illegible] and child, H C Kenyon and wife, Wm. Thompson, Mrs Calvin Glover and child, Wells Drury, Mrs M. Marizie and child, Joel B Huston and wife, Worth [illegible] C Bradshaw and daughter, Mrs Anna McCune, and 19 in the steerage.

ON THE PORCH —The downright audacity of the cows of this city is without limit The wife of a leading lady who lives on Sixth street [illegible] a loud noise out at the front door Supposing it to be some person, she came and hastily opened the door Judge of her utter astonishment when she beheld the form of a modest cow standing on the porch and browsing on the lady's most choice and highly prized fuchsias, verbenas and roses On being caught, the cow fled precipitately down the steps and up the street. The porch is about four feet high and is reached by [illegible] steps The lady says that the only offense for which she [illegible] the cow, is that Sukey did not have [illegible] enough to ring the door-bell.

HEBREW NEW YEAR.—To-morrow evening at 6 o'clock P will begin the New Year's day of our Hebrew fellow citizens, and will be celebrated from evening to evening It is the first day of the Hebrew month Tishrie, and the 5633d year since the creation of the world according to the Mosaic calendar The 1st day of the New Year, called in the Hebrew Rosh Ha'-shine, is one of the greatest occasions in the calendar not solely from the fact of its being the New Year, but from the deeper symbolic character Appropriate services will be held in the Synagogues in this city to-morrow evening and on Monday, and our Hebrew merchants will close their places of business during the whole of that day We congratulate them, and wish them a happy and prosperous New Year

FELL IN A FIT —Among the prisoners arraigned yesterday morning in the Police Court, was an old fellow who gave his name as Quigley This was the identical individual who fell off the tram last week while it was on the way from Albany to Jefferson in a state of [illegible] by intoxication Very fortunately he was not killed, and has managed to wander off down to Portland While sitting on the [illegible] seat and waiting to have his name called, Quigly suddenly fell over in a fit He struck his head against the balustrade with sufficient force to fracture a sober man's skull Two officers removed him to his cell where he soon recovered

CORNER STONE CEREMONIES.—To-morrow the imposing ceremonies of laying the corner stone of the Orphan Asylum at Vancouver will be held For the accommodation of those who may desire to attend and witness the ceremonies, the steamer One will make a special trip from Portland to Vancouver and back again on that day The steamer will leave the foot of Washington street at 9 o clock A M returning, [illegible] will [illegible] the river at 3.30 P M Tickets for the round trip 75 cents

NEW RETORTS The Gas Company are causing a general renovation of affairs up at the old works. A considerable quantity of the old fixtures call [illegible] indicators pipes &c. have been torn up and disconnected to give place to new and larger ones which are soon to be substituted. Prominent among the improvements we observed that five new retorts are being put in position These retorts will be ready to generate gas by the time the new tank is ready

DUE HERE —The Columbia will be due here to-morrow from Sitka and Wrangell ports with freight The Active is now in port announced to take the place of the Caliper on the next trip to Sitka

STEAMER ARRIVED —The steamer Fannie Tel-ford arrived here from South ports on Thursday evening She brought a large freight con[illegible] of skins, oils etc No passengers came on the steamer

FATHER HY [illegible] story [illegible] of a [illegible] Italy at restaurant [illegible] corner of [illegible] unless the [illegible] [illegible] promptly ordered to the kitchen [illegible] waiters keep shy of him One waiter [illegible] a practical joke on him a few days ago by putting a quantity of cayenne pepper into the [illegible] he had ordered The pastry presented [illegible] appearance was quickly [illegible] piece found its way to his mouth He [illegible] hardly closed his molars on it when a cry [illegible] drew the attention of those seated [illegible] restaurant The broad grins of the waiters revealed that a trick had been played The young man don't fool with the waiters now

THE PROGRESS CLUB —We called yesterday and found the additional rooms nearly finished The new card rooms require no furniture and a few pictures to complete the arrangements The store room is now ready leaving the one formerly used to be [illegible] as a hat room The dining room floor is to be oiled and then the new additions will be complete The new rooms are well lighted and plenty of air circulates through them On the evening of the 10th of October the [illegible] tion will take place when the ladies will be offered an opportunity to inspect the rooms and at the same time enjoy a few hours in terpsichorean exercises

STEAMER IDAHO —It was announced a few days ago in the dispatches that the steamer Idaho would soon sail from San Francisco to Portland with a cargo of railroad iron for the Northern Pacific Railroad The date of her sailing, was not announced But she must be expected at any time Besides the iron the Idaho will bring, other freight Thus will probably be unloaded here first when the steamer will proceed to Tacoma and discharge the railroad iron

HELD TO ANSWER.—J J Johnson was preliminarily examined in the Police Court yesterday morning, on the charge of grand larceny His [illegible] held to answer the charge before the grand jury in the sum of $500 Bonds not being forthcoming he was committed to jail The prosecuting witness J C Church was also required to give bonds for his appearance In default, he likewise was committed to jail.

NEW CHURCH —Work on the new church which is being erected near the Cornell road, about ten miles northwest of Portland, by the members of the German Presbyterian Church, of whom the Rev H Gaus is pastor, is progressing finely The building will be completed within four weeks It is the intention of the pastor to dedicate the edifice on or before the first of November

OFF FOR THE FAIR —The Rosedale Troupe, consisting of Mr and Mrs Robert Fulford Miss Minnie Pixley, Mrs. A. Clinton, Cox and McCain, will soon take their departure for Albany Eighty performances will be given by the troupe during the continuance of the Linn County Fair. They will return to Portland and then go to Salem to play at the State Fair

[illegible] Mr A D Beeman, who [illegible] interesting the operations of the new dredger, took sick with a fever He continued to grow worse, and was brought up last night on the tug Ben Holladay, and taken to his home In consequence of Mr. Beeman's illness operations were suspended on the dredger However, work will be resumed today

ARRESTED FOR LARCENY —Jim Pang, who keeps a laundry was arrested last evening charged with larceny. He took it appears several articles of clothing belonging to Bridget Gallagher and failed to return or account for the same. Jim Pang was admitted to bail in the sum of $200 This morning the case will be judicially inquired into at the Police Court.

IN THE RIVER.—The ship Webb in ballast from San Francisco, is, we learn, now in the river She is under charter to Ladlaw & Gate to carry a cargo of grain to Liverpool This vessel is in tow of the Merriman and will probably arrive today. On her arrival the ballast will be discharged at once, and the vessel have quick dispatch for Europe

BARK VESTA.—This bark is out from Liverpool about 160 days and is considerably over due here Her arrival at this port may be expected any time. The Vesta brings a large and assorted cargo Among the freight is the patent steam plough which was sent for last winter by Capt. R. R. Thompson, to be used on his farm in Yamhill county.

THROUGH THE G'L"—The force employed in making out the [illegible] rolls are progressing finely with their work Yesterday they [illegible] all the names commencing with the letter "O" Thus far the total valuation of property in the county over and above all Rebates and exceptions, [illegible] up $7 250 000

FOR THE ROCK —Mr A B Richardson will offer for sale this morning at auction, fifty shares in Oregon Iron Company at Oswego Extensive improvements are being made by the new company and the purchase of these shares will [illegible] be a paying investment to those who have capital.

PASSED OVER.—The steamer John L. Stephens which left here yesterday afternoon passed Swan Island bar in safety She was immediately followed by the Privateer, in tow of the Emma Hayward Both the ocean steamer and the bark scraped a little, but went over without stopping

[illegible] A Thompson and social entertainment will be given at the First Congregational Church in this city, on next Wednesday evening An excellent programme for the occasion will be prepared. Full particulars will be given on Monday

MUSIC —This evening the Central Market will have its usual weekly attraction—music The Fort Portland Band will be in attendance and furnish the crowd with the best strains they have in the "shop"

BARGE.—The Jane McNear towed down the barge Ace Reeves Chief yesterday loaded with wheat. She will be taken to Astoria and the grain transferred to the Privateer

The funeral services of Henry Nevison will be held in the Unitarian Church this afternoon at 2 o clock.

SATURDAY MORNING SEPT 20 1873

A LITTLE STORY FOR GENTLEMEN

Once upon a time a crow and a blackbird stood on a fence rail conversing They stood, but that was their way of sitting for they were quite at their ease The blackbird looked gratefully up to the large relation who spoke to him so kindly the crow, who wears Sunday clothes all the week and couldn't be more dignified even with spectacles, spoke as follows

You blackbirds are doubtless aware that we look upon you with tender admiration in fact, some have gone so far as to consider the blackbird heaven's first best gift to the crow

"First best gift—how pretty!" said the blackbird and he straightway made it into a little song

"That's right," said the crow, "I am pleased with you we don't sing ourselves because—be-caw-caw— here he set his head on one side and stopped to ponder

"Because you can't suggested the blackbird respectfully

"Not at all said the crow it is be-caw—in fact, it's a question of spheres Our sphere you observe, is the world for instance we see to the weather, and preside over corn plantings and hold conventions, and continually prepare new theorems concerning that still unfathomed mystery But why oppress with these ponderous themes, a little, simple songster"

"But you would, perhaps explain," said the blackbird, with deference.

"I refer to the question—the question of this and preceding ages, why men when they have prepared us a field of corn and by stretching, unmeaning lines advise it, and even erect strange beings, with spreading arms, in the midst These things do not help us on the contrary, they are unpleasantly bewildering Why, then"—I never shall rest until I find out why"

"That comes from your logical mind, said the blackbird

I am pleased with you, said the crow, and, getting down from the fence, he stepped about on the ground in a highly superior manner

"How d' 'ingnished!" thought the blackbird. "And we, sir?"

"You? oh haw We do all these things, and you sing to us while we are doing them You've no idea how inspiring it is to us, when we are engaged in these important matters, to know that you are sympathizing at a distance, uniting your nice little tunes to all our changes, and setting, so to speak, our lives to Music Haw!"

"Oh, how sweet!" said the blackbird, beginning at once to whistle it. "But suppose," he stopped just suppose you know that some of us didn't like singing, or wished to try those other ways of living?"

"That wouldn't do at all," said the crow, coming "You must be fond of singing A crow without a blackbird to ameliorate him it might subvert the unities Haw!"

"Well, if we should," said the blackbird, with "I ing

Then," said the crow, severely, "you would lose your influence," and again he got down from the fence, and stepped about

"Dear, dear," said the little one, trembling, "I'll never do it Please, sir, what is influence?"

"Influence my child, is that beautiful—haw! that indescribable caw! In short, it means that, if you only take pains to find out what we like to do, you can almost always soothe us into doing it. But whatever you may think of our doing always remember that our high toned natures cannot brook censure, and that the your influence is to meet us with a song"

"I'll try to remember," the blackbird said, and they part

The next day, Jack and Jenny Blackbird were happy, feeling their very first brood

There's a shoulder for you," said Jenny "Sweet, sweet, spread out your wings I think they'll fly by to-morrow"

"I for this remarkable mouth," said Jacky, dropping a worm in it. "I don't see why, with our social advantages, we couldn't train them to be almost equal to crows I'm sure our cousin will visit us And he says if we want to keep on good terms we must always meet him with a song, and be constantly careful not to lose our influence."

"What's that?" said Jenny, "Do see how he balances! He'll certainly fly to-morrow"

I don't know exactly, but we keep it by letting them have their own way and especially by singing and if we lose it, they'll be sure to despise us

"You don't say so!" said Jenny "That is tendure Ah heavens above, what's this?"

For something suddenly swooped down into their nest, and carried off the fledgeling in its beak

"Oh, cousin cried Jacky, "you've made a mistake you've got our eldest child"

"Yes I'm quite fond of them, said the large "What a blunderhead this pair you are! But why don't you sing? As I told you, we always expect to be met with a song

"But you've got our child, screamed Jenny, "Oh you're hurting him!"

I won't hurt him more than I must" said the "Why "But, pardon me if I notice haw! any of that cheerful which ought to be a disgusting black bird trait What, still no music? Then I begin to

"Let me try our influence," grasped Jacky "perhaps it may soften him" And they began to sing a wavering song

"How improving that is" said the crow with a caw suspended "Really there was one instant when I felt so exalted that I was on the point of putting the morsel back in the nest If it hadn't been quite so juicy However, may be I won't come for more"

"Still let us sing" said the parents if we lose our influence he will eat them all" And while he was picking the little bones, they sang until their voices failed with anguish

Their large cousin left but next day he returned

"I regret," he remarked, 'that you fail to bring the more fully under your influence. A little more would have done it But I feel assured that the sight of so much patience and humility will have an indirectly exalting effect on my nature And he clawed out another birdling

"Oh, don't" cried the parents no longer singing "Don't take our children! don't make us so unhappy.

"There is something quite amiss here," said the crow, with a air 'Blackbirds waiting and expostulating—proclaiming themselves unhappy in their relations with us? Why, that is as much as to say that we do wrong! And how impolite in them to scream away the sweetness of that voice which is their only charm I declare that they look so dowdy with their wings all drooping, that I feel no compunction at all in inconveniencing such creatures." And he tweaked the second head with a gusto,

"Oh!" cried Jacky

"Wretch and robber!" screamed Jenny, and they flew to and fro, and pecked him with their beaks

"Oh, very well," said the crow retiring with his dinner, "if you step from your sphere, and attempt to fight your own battles, you may take the consequence Look for me to-morrow"

But between that day and the morrow an other thing happened The parent birds, grown reckless abandoned music, and took to holding conventions Far and near were heard the flutter of wings, and the sound of black birds' voices not practicing tunes but joining in eager discussion and lamentation

Strange, said the crow, that these creatures will make themselves so unpleasing to us! If there is anything in this world I find offensive to all my finer feelings it's a blackbird convention When blackbirds so far forget themselves they must expect that crows will give them trouble And he started to get his third dinner.

But, lo and behold the nest was already surrounded by friends and relations who swarmed about him and with untuneful cries and ungainly beaks condemned him of his error

I knew what would happen" said the crow, as he sallied away disheveled and dinnerless you have disgusted me now you have lost your influence forever

Moral—But they saved their other three children —Edna Sproat Turner

WASHINGTON Sept 15 Postmaster General Cresswell intends to take prompt action compelling the railroad companies to get mails here from the north more regularly than they have done for weeks past. He says of the managers of the air line road between here and New York must on placing postal cars in the middle of the trains, he will instruct postal clerks to carry revolvers and shoot down any one whether in the employ of railroad companies or not who attempts to pass through the cars

The failure of large financial establishments in the East as reported in our regular dispatches for a day or two past recalls attention to some facts connected with the statements of the business of the New York banks on the 1st of the present month which even with the flattering prospects of improvement is not wholly suggestive of confidence Henry Clews & Co bankers of Wall street, in their September circular intimate danger of that to which present events bring the realization This say

The present condition of the banks of this city which is the main clew all in the question of the future course of the money market—is not wholly suggestive of confidence At this early date money is going quite freely to the West for facilitating crop movements and the reserves carry by no means in a condition to sustain a heavy drain of greenbacks The legal tenders in hand are $5 500 000 less than a year ago and $14 000 000 less than at this date of 1871 and the surplus beyond the amount of reserve required by law is $6 900 000 against $ 000 000 at this date of last year and $10 000 000 in 1871 Thus the reserves are in no better position than they were at the beginning of two seasons of extraordinary stringency and yet it is this reserve which under our present national banking laws must strictly determine the ability of the banks to lend There is however one fact in favor of the banking situation At the date of the last official return of the banks to the Comptroller of the Currency—viz June 21st—the New York city banks held $13 700 000 less of the funds of other banks than a year previous from which we infer that the country banks are not in a position to draw upon their New York correspondents as freely as last year We may, of course, expect the same attempts on the part of speculators to lock up currency or otherwise produce stringency as at all other periods favoring such operations and in that event the intervention of the Government is the only effective relief to be relied upon

It is due to state that regularly at the opening of the fall season we should have possibilities of this sort to contemplate and provide against and it is especially so this year when otherwise there is every condition requisite to an active and prosperous business Again the crops of the West are abundant and the trade of the whole interior is in a flourishing condition The cotton crop gives every promise of being a very abundant one, and our coal and iron trades, which have already assumed great magnitude are on the eve of a splendid opportunity for development arising out of the peculiar relations of the two countries at present the iron industries in Great Britain Yet, with this flattering prospect before us capital is paralyzed from the apprehension that a handful of reckless speculators may be able to embarrass the whole machinery of credit at the financial center of the country While the action of this class of the community should always be remembered exists only through the perpetuation of faulty banking laws—we have all the conditions necessary to a period of splendid prosperity Our foreign commerce has recovered from the overdoing of last year The imports show an important reduction in volume and there is less of that unhealthy competition in the import trade between regular importers and the jobbing houses which on the one hand has enhanced prices in the foreign markets and on the other has reduced profits here to a more properly basis and has raised heavy loads The exports have very largely increased at all the ports and once more we find the exports and imports nearly balancing each other, leaving less to be exported in the form of securities to settle the trade account than during late years.

The New York Bulletin contains the following remarks about the wheat market of that city

The total sales in this market for September and October are between 2,000,000 and 3,000,000, and some of the best informed brokers say that it is nearer 4,000 000 than 3,000,000 and the latter amount can be traced to four or five leading houses leaving 1,000,000 for outside and smaller operators How the Western markets stand, we are unable to say definitely but that the speculation is understand to have extended there in as great a degree as here and the nature of the wheat market is beginning a puzzling problem, which even is able to solve to their satisfaction or that of any one else while its magnitude is such as to cause apprehension on the part of both buyers and sellers, to some extent These people have been all made for foreign account and the freights have been largely engaged to take out the wheat, fearing an advance and scarcity of the later later in the season And those who have appre- sions of the future of the market claim that exporters have subsequently bought and are still buying not simply for speculation, but to save themselves against any contingencies of the kind named which might interrupt their necessary supplies and that when these purchases are completed the export demand, present and prospective will be filled, and all the light freighable cargoes and then there will be no demand for what spot wheat may come on this market later in the season and must drop to a price to induce speculators to take hold of it and put it in store, or that it will have to be carried on shipper's account till the crop has worked off the accumulations We are also informed, by private advices, that the Continental markets are already becoming weak under pressure to sell these heavy parcels was made to arrive There is certainly cause to look for something of the kind on both sides of the water, unless the shortness of the European crops is sufficient to counterbalance the heavy shipments and carry them steadily into distribution and consumption on their arrival should this occur no trouble can be looked for, but should the distribution be checked heavy accumulations cannot be avoided and the strength of holders would be all that could prevent a reaction that might be disastrous to all concerned, and in destroying confidence entail an unsound and unhealthy state of the markets both in Europe and this country, for a part of the entire balance of the season

What To-Day.

The report was circulated in the forenoon to-day that wheat had received a "black eye in Liverpool and San Francisco, and exporters here declared to have settled down to $1 90 per cental in this market. Sundry reports of private dispatches which had been received, stating a decline one placing the fall at twenty five cents per cental How many of these rumors were based on fact we are unable to determine but our regular telegrams from the Bay as published below, indicate no important fluctuation in that place Private telegrams quote the Liverpool market dull, while our regular dispatches from San Francisco say no Liverpool wheat quotations to-day' How the wires could convey the intelligence that the market was dull, and the quotations could not be transmitted, is something we cannot understand We shall await further reports with some interest. In the meantime transactions are limited
